Still Unforgettable Natalie Cole Comes to the Tropicana June 26

Atlantic City, NJ (April 28, 2010) – Nine-time Grammy Award winner Natalie Cole joins the Trop Rocks summer concert lineup with a live performance in the Tropicana Showroom on Saturday, June 26, 2010.

Natalie Cole was born into musical royalty, the daughter of crooner Nat King Cole and former Duke Ellington Orchestra singer Maria Cole. Since making her stage debut at the age of eleven, Natalie has become one of the finest female jazz vocalists to grace the airwaves since the likes of Ella Fitzgerald and Billie Holiday.

Landing an early deal with Capitol Records, and she released a string of hit albums and singles from 1975 until 1983. Such LPs as Inseparable, Natalie, Thankful, Unpredictable, and I Love You So yielded five number one R&B hits between 1975 and 1977. These included “This Will Be,” “Inseparable,” “Our Love” and “I’ve Got Love on My Mind.” She scored more hits with “Jump Start,” “I Live for Your Love” and “Over You” in 1987, and “Pink Cadillac,” a cover of the Bruce Springsteen tune, in 1988.

Cole eased into a transition to jazz with “When I Fall in Love,” a number her father recorded in 1957. It was included on her 1987 LP Everlasting. She fully embraced the move with the 1991 LP Unforgettable: With Love, earning Grammy Awards and landing a number one pop album that eventually sold over five million copies. The title track featured her doing a duet with her father via electronic elaboration.

Cole most recently released the follow-up, Still Unforgettable, which earned her two GRAMMY Awards and a NAACP Award for Best Jazz Artist.
